WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- Red Flag warning is in effect for portions of Los Angeles and Ventura Counties:
 - A moderate to strong Santa Ana wind event will develop in the Los Angeles and Ventura County Mountains and most valleys from 02/10/18 at 2200 hours through 02/11/18 at 1800 hours.
 - Northeast winds will gust up to 60 mph in the mountains and 45 mph in the valleys, combined with low humidity overnight and during the day on 02/11/18.
 - This will be a short-lived, but intense event that could result in rapid fire growth given the very dry fuel moisture and lack of significant rainfall this season.

Red Flag Warning In Effect

Late Saturday through Sunday Afternoon

Los Angeles & Ventura County Mountains & Most Valleys

Impacts:

- Potential for rapid fire growth and extreme fire behavior if ignition occurs

Winds:

- Gusts to 45 mph valleys and up to 60 mph over the mountains

Humidities:

- Lowering to 5 to 12 percent valleys and 8 to 15 percent mountains

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

 Dry with Periods of Gusty N-NE Winds, Strongest Saturday and Monday through Tuesday ***

Strong high pressure just west of CA will move west and weaken late today as a cold front approaches from the north. Today will be another dry and warm day with RH in interior areas dropping to 18-28%. N-NE surface winds will gust to around 25 mph in a few wind-prone spots from the western Cascade-Sierra slopes to the coastal mountains this morning.

The moderately strong dry cold front will move from north to south across the region tonight. At this point no precipitation is expected with the front. Temperatures will be cooler, but still several degrees above normal, and minimum daily RH will be higher. N-NE/offshore winds following the front could gust to 35-45 mph and locally higher in the usual areas from the western Cascade-Sierra slopes to the coast Saturday, with winds dropping off on Sunday. A similar cold front will pass over the region Sunday night, and similar winds are expected Monday and Tuesday. This front is expected to produce isolated light rain and snow showers in far northern areas. Mild and dry weather with light northerly winds can be expected Wednesday and Thursday.

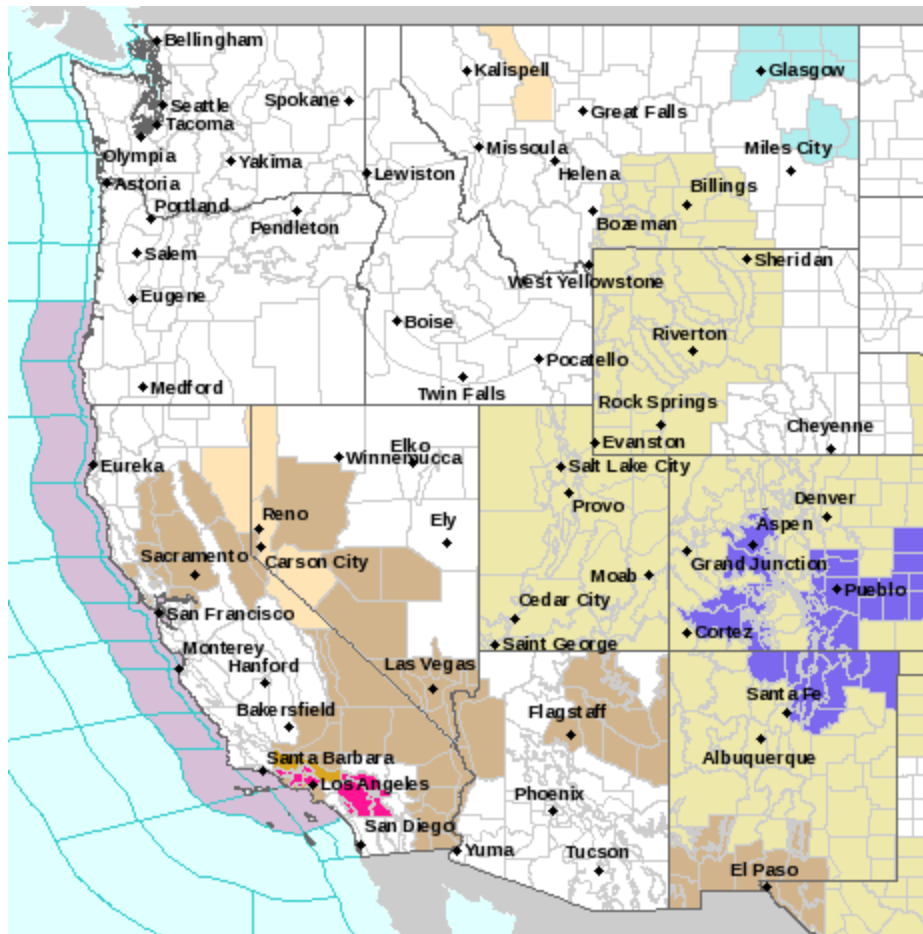

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Offshore winds late Saturday night and Sunday

Cooler with a chance of showers Monday and Tuesday

An upper level low is expected to drop into the Southwest, resulting in gusty winds during the weekend and cooler weather early next week. Today and Saturday, onshore pressure gradients will return which will lead to temperatures dropping 2-5 degrees each day. Highs will be back to the 50s in the mountains to the 70s in the valleys by Saturday. As the low advances toward the area, gusty north and northwest winds of 20-30 mph will develop Saturday across the Kern County Mountains, the I-5 Corridor toward the Angeles National Forest. These winds will turn offshore and increase to the 25-35 mph with gusts over 60 mph Saturday night into Sunday. The strongest winds will occur over Ventura and northern Los Angeles Counties from the Santa Clarita Valley toward the Oxnard plain. Temperatures Sunday will jump back into the 80s over much of Southern California on Sunday. The winds should subside by Sunday evening. Sharply colder weather is expected Monday and Tuesday with highs dropping into the upper 30s and 40s in the mountains to the 60s at lower elevations. Scattered showers will be possible Monday evening into Tuesday, but most areas will see less than a quarter of an inch of rainfall. Gusty offshore winds may develop Tuesday night, leading to sunny and warmer weather returning by the middle of next week.
